Highwaymen. On the 9th just, the United States mail coach or stage, from San Antonio to Luling, was cap tured and robbed by three gentlemen of the road, who also deprived the passengers of whatever valuables they had about their persons. This is the second instance within a few weeks in this State of the capture of mail coaches by highwaymen and the robbery of the passengers, the first occurring near the town of San Marco about twenty miles west of Austin, the State capital. I met to-day a passenger on the stage last robbed, and I give the particulars as fur nished by him : "We left San Antonio early Tuesday for Luling, the present termious of the Peirle Railroad of Sunset Rou'e. The stage was full of passengers. They were : Dr. Herman, I. K. Eckrane and W. H. Harris, of San Antonio; C. C. McKinney, of Atascosa county; Geo. Hilliard, a colored man of Indianola; V. F. Moore, of California; Dr. A. P. Chase, of Illinois; D. E. Singleman, of St. Louis; Miss Ogden, of San Antonio; Miss Me Kinney, of Atascosa, and some others whose names I do not remember. When about twenty-five miles from San Antonio, while the stage was slowly ascending a long bill in the prairie, a man on a fine gray horse rode up to the stage from the front and asked the driver if he had seen a horse on the road dragging a rope. The driver told him he had not. I noticed that this man looked into the coach closely while talking to the driver. He was a tall, powerful man, with light beard and hair, rosy and healthy looking, and was about thirty five years of age, I should think. He immediately rode off rapidly, as it in pursuit of the horse dragging the rope. As the stage moved on, a few minutes later, this same man and in no case has it failed to give full satisfaction."—[Elien Meacham, Chattahoochee, Fla. men on the roadside, one of them mounted on a sorrel horse and the other on toot. As the stage approached the man on the gray horse rode off into the mo-quite chapparal, which was here very dense. When within a few yards medicine "-[Dr. J. W. Mason. of them the man on foot stepped in front of the stage and, pointing a double-barrelled shotgun, both barrels cocked and his finger on the trigger, at the driver, ordered him to balt. The driver, in amazement, obeyed. The other man of the clothing, while the other two stood over us with the cocked weapons. "Miss Ogden, a handsome young lady, stout ly refused to be searched. She told them she had no money and that she would die before they should touch her. One of the scoundrels threatened to take her into the brush, but she still refus d, and they finally let her atone. Atter getting through with the passengers they made the negro, George Hilliard, rip open the mail bags. "Oue of them opened every letter and package, and I saw that they got a good deal of money out of them. Mr. Moore, of California, had $420 in gold on his person and some $40 or $50 in greenbacks, all of which they took. The negro, George Hilliard, had $104, which they got, too. The other passengers, except Miss Ogden, had but small amounts of money with them, but the highwaymen got all they had. I think in all they got about a thousand dollars. "Miss Ogden had over $300 on her, and she is the only one of the passengers who came out of the affair with a single cent. Dr. Chase had a fine gold watch, which they took. He appeared to feel his loss very much, as he seemed to prize the watch for something outside of its money value, Some of the other passengers also had watches, which were taken from them. As for myself, I came out easy, having only $8 or $10 about me at the time. Correspondent-Did none of you have arms?

Passenger-There were two splendid rifles in the company, and also one or two pistols; but the thing occurred so quickly and suddenly there was no chance to draw them. If we had made fight the highwaymen would certainly have fired upon us, and some of the ladies would no doubt have been killed. But to resist under the circumstances was out of the

Correspondent-Did they handle you roughly? Passenger-No; they were rather polite. So were we all, except Miss Orden, who showed them no complaisance. Had we been otherwise I suppose they would have handled us pretty roughly. The whole job was over in twenty minutes or less. The robbers then rode off and disappeared in the chapparal. We proceeded on our journey and reached Suguin Correspondent-Did no one pass on the road while this was going on?

Passenger-No one. There were no houses anywhere near, and the point was a splendid one for the robbers to make this attempt. From the top of the hill they could see any one approaching at a long distance.

This occurred a week ago, and none of these robbers have yet been captured, nor can I learn that any effort at all has been made to terret them out. The State government is imbecile and does nothing. There is, therefore, little probability that the highwaymen will be caught. Those who robbed the stage near San Marcos went soot free, not even a detective having been placed on their track. Encouraged by impunity, they will no doubt soon attack other stages in other parts of the State. He who travels in these conveyances in Texas should take little money with him, and should go pre pared to defend himself at a moment's notice. The highwaymen have not yet begun to attack travelers on horsebaak, but if something is not done to suppress these freebooters they will no doubt make Texas a most uncomfortable place to the wavfarer, in whatever style he may go.
